Esteemed friend/relative,

We received your esteemed letter and see from it that there are more Anstetts in America, but we don't believe that we are related ("in der Freundschaft" - amoung your relations). But nevertheless we were very happy to have heard from you. My name is Georg Anstett and my father too, and my father had only one brother and we are from Ingweiler. You can write to Germany now. They may know more. This letter left us in good health and in hopes that this arrives to you in good health. Also greet Fred. Redinger.

We greet you cordially,

Georg Anstett

(The above written in German, but he writes in the lower left hand corner in English - George Anstett has beautiful penmanship.)

Note: The above letter is in the possession of Mrs. Alice A. MacPherson, a descendant of George Anstett. George Anstett was born in 1800 and died February 7, 1879, age 77 years, 4 months, 17 days per his tombstone, County Line Cemetery, 2½ miles west of Ashley, Indiana (Steuben County).

The information below is from the research of Richard Anstett of Germany:

Georg (German spelling) Anstett was born on Oct. 31, 1800 in Ingweiler/Elsass/Lothringen. His parents were Georg Anstett and Elisabeth Weis, both were living in Ingweiler, Elsass/Lothringen. Georg Anstett married on Oct. 3rd 1826 with Susanna Staufer, born on June 27th, 1801 in the Markirchental at Barr, Elsass/Lothringen, was a daughter of St. Joseph Staufer (he was a cultivator) and Susanna Habertisch. Their son Karl (not Charles) was born on May 23rd, 1827 in Ingweiler. His father who was 27 years old was a tailor, lived in the house with the number 123. The daughter Salomea (not Sarah) was born on October 8th, 1830 in Ingweiler. The parents both had been 30 years old. After 1830 there aren't found any further registrations.

According to Civil-Status-Registers

Ingweiler can be found in Elsass/Lothringen, an area German language. Today, according to the French designation, it is called Ingwiller.

THE ABOVE IS CORRECTED AND SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION.

Mrs. Richard White

One of mother's first cousins told her several years ago that when he entered the service during World War I, that his grandmother (Susan Anstett Ringler), daughter of George Anstett 1800-1879, told him that if he got over to France, to go to St. Nicholas, near Nancy, where the Anstetts came from, and see if he could find any of their relatives. This does not fit the above information, unless the family lived in St. Nicholas before moving to Ingweiler. In another year or so, I would like to proceed with research in and around St. Nicholas.

Carolyn,

Wishing you well.

Martha's back for 45th year

By DAVE KURTZ

Things are popping again at Martha's.

But there was a time last fall when it looked like Martha Falka's 45-year career as Auburn's popcorn lady was ended.

On Friday afternoon of the county fair, she tripped over a power cable that was snaked across the sidewalk at Ninth and Main streets. The result was a clean break of the bones in her knee.

Martha had surgery that night in a Fort Wayne hospital and only four days later, she was bending her injured knee in a way that made the doctors rub their eyes in disbelief.

A winter of recuperation was all Martha needed to be back in business for her 45th year. Some of her customers may have been concerned about her future, but Martha wasn't worried in the least.

"I couldn't wait to get here," she said Tuesday night, on her third day of the popcorn season. "I didn't think I'd be busy...and Lord, I didn't get the lights on until they were out there."

But business is slow on this warm spring night, and Martha has time to reminisce about 4½ decades of pleasing Auburn's palate.

Auburn's popcorn stand used to be on Seventh Street, between what is now Carbaugh Jewelers and what used to be Dr. J.H. Wilkinson's optometry office. Martha was employed in a restaurant next door.

"When I first bought it, I was working for George Bishop waiting tables — a sody jerk. Mrs. Wible wanted to sell it," Martha recalls of the popcorn place.

"I'll buy it," Martha volunteered in a conversation one day, but she wasn't very serious about the offer. Berniece Wible was. A few days later, she called Martha and asked to meet her at the bank the next day.

"I don't have any money," Martha protested.

"That's why I want to meet you at the bank," Mrs. Wible answered patiently.

But there was to be no bank loan for Martha — no money at all until Amos Adams of the local loan company heard about her plight. He offered Martha a loan of $500 to buy the business and the equipment.

Talk about your sound investments — she's still using most of that same equipment, except for the popcorn popper itself, a newfangled model she bought in 1953.

The big, whitewashed, wood and glass cabinet that contains the popper has a little more history to it.

"Lord, I've had it 45 years and Mrs. Wible was on the courthouse square at least 10 years," Martha exclaims when asked about the age of the case. "She must have had it 20 years. I bet that's close to 80-85 years old."

A large metal bowl and gas burner, where Martha's famous caramel corn is concocted, are over in one corner. Like the case, they're of indeterminate age. They came with the business, 45 years ago.

By these standards, Martha's stand, affectionately known as "Fort Martha" because of its surrounding picket fence, is practically brand new.

Martha moved to her little white building, and to Ninth Street, a quarter century ago when her Seventh Street landlord decided to expand his business and moved Martha out of the way.

Auburn's late-night snack source was in jeopardy, until a trio of white knights rode to Martha's rescue.

One of the heroes was Vern Buchanan, former publisher of The Evening Star and an Auburn institution in his own right.

"I thought I was going out of business, but Mr. Buchanan called me and said if I could find a building, I could set it here," Martha remembers.

Enter Fort Martha. "I bought it from Red Blickenstaff. It was a used car lot office," Martha explains.

Gerry Oren was Auburn's mayor, and one rainy Saturday morning he phoned to rouse Martha from her sleep at 5 a.m. He instructed her to get uptown on the double. "I came up and here set this building," she relates, using her hands to re-enact her amazement.

Hardly anything has changed since then, although the popcorn stand has a new decor for 1985.

"See what they did to my house? Carpeting!" Martha exclaims. "They washed all these walls down, my cupboards, put up new curtains...I call them the good fairies."

The good fairies are Mike and Mary Smaltz, Judy Shook and Barbara Drayna, who borrowed a key and slipped inside Martha's stand to do their good deeds last Sunday. Mike Smaltz toted buckets of water all the way from Auburn City Hall, a distance of 1½ blocks. Little Robert Drayna, age 3, told Martha, "I helped clean up the popcorn store."

Little Robert is the latest among generations of tots who have discovered that Martha's is a magical place.

"The kids have all been here with their dolls again," Martha says with a smile. "I don't know what I'd do without this place. The kids are all so cute when they come up here."

Sometimes she lets the boys and girls pass the popcorn through the little window and take the customers' money. Parents protest that Martha shouldn't let their children do that, but Martha shushes them. "They love to come in here, so I just let them come in," she tells the parents. "They're not gonna hurt nothing, so let 'em come in."

In fact, almost everyone is a kid to Martha, and the appeal of helping in her popcorn stand doesn't wear off with age. Two of Martha's newest helpers are in their 30s, Steve Post and Bob McClain, who stirred the gooey caramel corn for the first time this week.

Post tagged along with his neighbor and local attorney, Jeff Turner, who has been a regular helper with the task of lugging Martha's ingredients around, dumping them into the caramel corn vat and stirring the sticky mixture. Others who shared the cooking in recent years have been Sandy Condon, the Rev. George Schuette, Marty Alexander and Dr. Paul Trausch.

"Doc's been the steady one. The rest of 'em filled in when Doc can't get here," Martha adds. She chuckles, "I can stir it, but Paul thinks I can't, so I just let him think so."

In truth, Martha looks healthy as ever in her cheery, redecorated surroundings. Yellow curtains with green and orange flecks add a splash of color to the building, but not like Martha's long, red fingernails. They pay good money for fingernails like those nowadays. In a Fort Wayne store last week, a cosmetics clerk insisted that Martha's were false. "No, those are mine," Martha retorted.

Martha's glasses hang from a chain around her neck, seldom used. Hanging behind the door, never used, is what Martha believes to be a fire extinguisher. It's shaped like an ice cream cone, with a yellow base and ball on top that resembles a scoop of double chocolate. "That came with the building," says Martha. "I don't even know how to use it." And it is probably too late, now.

But Martha does have a new refrigerator. It's in The Evening Star building, where she keeps all her supplies. Some things really do wear out, like the used refrigerator Martha bought in 1972 for a whopping $10, which lasted only 13 years.

Times have changed, too, because Martha has to use a key to get into the Star building. In the old days, "They never locked it at night. I don't think Mr. Buchanan ever had a key to the place," she remembers.

"I didn't want to move, but I'm glad I did," Martha says of her Ninth Street location.

The bugs aren't bad, yet, on this last night of April. The air is cool and fresh. In a few months it will be sweltering inside the little popcorn stand, but Martha will turn up the gas burners and make the city's favorite caramel corn and never complain.

Now the late night stillness is broken by footsteps that stop in front of the little, screened window. "I'll take a bag of popcorn, please," a man's voice says.

Martha explains that she has 35-cent bags and 60-cent bags. In 1940 the prices were 5, 10 and 15 cents.

She scoops the kernels into a brown paper sack. He doesn't want any butter. "Nice night," he remarks.

"Yeah, it's beautiful," Martha replies. And good to be back.

Martha pops in to people's lives

Staff writer

Maybe it's the way she greets you with an offhand, but warm, "Howdy doody there" and then calls you "dear."

Or maybe it's the way her office looks like your bedroom — crammed full with two worn wicker chairs, covers, a smashed pillow, paperback novels, a Breck hairspray can, a coffee cup, an ashtray. Cluttered, but homey.

Or maybe it's because she's 74 years old, but — with her long painted red fingernails, hoop earrings, blouse with the can-can dancer design, and unmistakable pluck — looks like she could live forever.

Or maybe it's because of her popcorn.

Yep, probably it's her popcorn.

Her given name is Martha Falka. Now that you've heard it, forget it. "Martha Popcorn" or just "Martha" will do.

She was born and raised in Auburn, a courthouse-square town of 8,000 just north of Fort Wayne. In April 1941 she bought a business there. A popcorn stand. She's still popping corn today.

You may have heard of her; she's got an envelope stuffed with newspaper clippings about her business. Or better yet — maybe you've met her. Or even better — maybe you've tasted her popcorn.

She sells her popcorn plain, buttered and carameled. A brown paper bag full of plain popcorn will set you back 15, 25 or 50 cents — depending on the size of the bag. Butter costs a nickel extra, but just on the small bag.

She also sells roasted peanuts, with a special recipe she inherited years ago. She wishes they weren't so good.

"I can't keep those in," she says with a sigh. "People just like them too much. And I don't care much for making them. They take a lot of time."

era of mind-boggling conglomerates, Martha's business is an anomaly. It's just popcorn and peanuts — and Martha.

Her tiny white-frame stand sits on Ninth Street, just a block from the courthouse. It's trimmed with black paint. Five lightbulbs dangle from a line in front and, as the sun starts to set, draw you like a beacon to Martha's place.

You place your order at the swinging window, and then pause a few minutes to chat with Martha about her backache or your tendonitis or how everybody's kids are growing up so fast. She calls you by your name — and, if she doesn't know it, she finds out. You, of course, call her Martha.

She occasionally forgets, with all the talking going on, if you ordered your popcorn with butter. And sometimes she has trouble making change out of your $10 bill. But, no matter. At Martha's, your credit is good. And, if she comes up short a few cents, so what?

Just who buys Martha's popcorn?

"What do you mean, dear?" she says, befuddled by the question, but not in the least annoyed. "Everybody buys it."

She's right.

On a recent summer night, a string of customers stepped up to the window — young children on bikes, middle-aged men, mothers with their brood, a matronly-looking woman. But especially kids.

"My little kids are the ones I love," says Martha. "They're my pets...They know who I am. Oh, Lordy, they yell and scream at me from cars."

Customers, nearly all of them, rib Martha gently and compliment her indirectly.

"My kids' orthodonist is going to get after you, Martha," teases a woman ordering caramel popcorn. "You got any caramel corn?...What, you're almost out. Oh, shoot. You got a little?" implores a man. "Ummm," says a young boy, grabbing handfuls of greatest."

Martha's clientele isn't just local; customers have been known to come from towns around the area. And at Christmas, Auburn residents mail her popcorn to friends and relatives around the country. And, in days gone by, Martha's corn popped up in Germany and Korea and Vietnam when local servicemen wrote and asked her to send them some — or received packages from their family.

Martha's operation is slightly unconventional. She opens a 4 p.m. each day, then closes an hour later. "I go home for supper," she explains, matter-of-factly. Then, she reopens at 7 p.m. and keeps the lights on until 11 p.m. She takes a vacation January through March, but opens each spring and works until "I get my Christmas orders done."

Her stand, which contains the wicker chairs and other knickknacks, also houses her popcorn popper — a fascinating contraption that whirls around and lifts its lid as the cooked kernels come tumbling out. Around it are bottles of syrup, a container of salt, boxes of brown sugar, jugs of oil, a carton of kernels.

Martha moves slowly, but with precision, about her small cubicle. She keeps the popper steadily at work. She stirs, with a long wooden paddle, the caramel syrup simmering on a gas burner. She scurries next door to the newspaper office — she has her own key — where she wets some rags and fetches supplies from a refrigerator.

As the evening wears on, the cubicle heats up.

But Martha's used to it. Just as she's used to the sputtering sound of popping kernels. And to the sweet aroma of melted butter and caramel. And to the faces at the window that never seem to go away.

Popping corn is her life.

"No, I don't know what I'd do without it, dear," she says, pondering the question only a second. "Yes, I guess it is a part of me. After 40 years, I would say so."

Dear Lorna, I cannot control my computer records. They don't like to give me any information on any living relation. I can't even find any blank forms that I like. 1) Our eldest is Frederick, (60) may be known as Fred, is Fritz in the family.

2) Our second is Lisa, age 58, married to Scott Donaho. They have 2 children, Emily and Michael.

3) Dan (55) married to Karen, no children, live in Round Rock, Texas.

4) Katrina, age (49 married to Richard Gebhardt, They have 4 daughters. I may sometimes refer to her as "Trina." He is "Rich" He retired from the military as a warrant officer. Now works at the same job as a civilian. They live in Columbus, N. Their eldest was named Amelia Xanthe. The names Amelia and Emily were too close, and they are only 3 weeks apart, so the younger of the two has always been called Xani. The next little Gebhardt was named Sarah Carolyn, called Caro until the youngest found it too hard to pronounce & called her Coco. The youngest, now 17 Lilith, was called Lili. The 3rd, Cecilia, is of course Ceci, now in her final year of grad school at Ind. University

Carolyn, I have an awful time trying to figure out your family names in your letters. I know you did a lot of work on geneology before your health crisis — Do you have on your computer something that could be printed out to list the relationships of just your immediate descendents? Would love to study such.

Please pass on to Florian our appreciation for all he has done to help you.

I have not been in contact with other cousins; please feel free to pass on anything from this letter. Maybe I'll find time to write them for their 84th birthday.

Regards to all your family —

Your loving cousin, filled with memories,

Lorna Lee

Nov. 1, 2017

Dear Carolyn,

How many times my mother, your Aunt Rachel, reminded me that she and my Aunt Naomi were pregnant together, and that your birth-day was just 11 wks after mine! Carolyn, so much has happened in our 84 yrs on this earth, both personally and globally, it makes your head spin! And now both of us are in the twilight of our lives, coping with "whatever" has been dealt out to each of us. But everytime I feel sorry for myself, I think of you, realizing that Carolyn's burdens dwarf mine, and I should just "shape up". I am so proud of you for the physical, mental, spiritual strength you have shown in your challenges. You have been a role model for us all (as has Florian) and a beacon of hope.

I am in good general health, but in almost constant chronic pain from fibromyalgia, osteoarthritis, sciatica, piriformus muscle syndrome and such — as well as the usual signs of aging that we all endure. I am working with the Washington U. School of Medicine Pain Control Clinic, but only getting worse.

Of course, as now the oldest of our strain of Putts, I should be the next to die. But I'll be fighting to the bitter end as I have so much I need (not just want) to do. I'll let you know when I die and you all must forgive me if like David, I don't take my turn! Meanwhile you keep fighting to remain 2nd oldest Here —

Vernon harvested his last crop in 2013 (renting out our owned acreage on shares) — but we haven't seen any retirement yet!! He had 4 orthopedic surgeries in 3 yrs, and I have had my battles. We still have not liquidated by auction our machinery, excess household, etc. So we are struggling to wind things up. We would love to come back up to Indiana one more time if we can "retire", and then both be well at the same time.

You are very fortunate, you two, to have such a wonderful support system in your offspring. Which makes Florian pretty lucky, too. Our eldest son, Craig 62 is around half the time, but now plans to marry a "girl" from Crystal Lake (near Chicago) and will probably be moving up there. He is in constant contact with us, by phone, etc. But Sheree 62: Walnut Creek, CA; Vicki 57 Orlando, FL; Brent 51 Monterey CA. — all so far away. Vicki has dgt Rachel 27 employed in Yal music dept, and son Samuel finishing 2nd yr in accounting at FL small college. Craig has dgt Annie 16 soph in H.S. lives with her mother in Indy (divorced when Annie age 4). Sheree (divorced) and Brent (unmarried) childless.

Peggy sends me (as well as the other sisters) lots of your letters to keep us all abreast re: your welfare and family. You are a dear to work so hard to keep in communication.

Descendants of Thomas Vail
11. Samuel^3 Vail, Jr. (Samuel^2, Thomas^1) was born December 21, 1678 in Westchester County, New York, and died June 26, 1733 in Woodbridge, New Jersey, U.S.A.. He married (2) Sarah Farrington February 08, 1724/25 in Queens, Flushing New York, daughter of Matthew Farrington. She died June 21, 1756 in Westchester County, New York.

Children of Samuel Vail and Abigail Hadden are:

Notes

Samuel Vail,Jr.: yeoman. custodian. overseer, assessor to Westchester,

Samuel (3) Vail came to the vicinity of Plainfield, just when is not known, and died at Woodbridge, N. J., 26 June, 1733. Like his brother, John (3), Q. P., he had bought a large tract of land along Green Brook, just S.W. of Plainfield, in what is now Somerset County. This plantation was bought about the time that John (3) bought his farm, which was in what is now North Plainfield, from the Dutch proprietor Peter Sonmans, 3 April, 1732, and hence it would seem that Samuel left Westchester only a little over a year before his death.

DETAILS

West Jersey was bought by the Quakers of Pennsylvania in 1675 and East Jersey in 1682. The latter group was headed by William Penn himself, and the purchase price was œ3500, equal to about $17,000 in present (1929) currency. Of course this sum was proportionately very much greater in those days than now but even so, it was a purchase which would compare favorably with the celebrated sale of Manhattan Island for $24., for Penn's bargain included the whole of the present state with the exception of the extreme southern and western part.

The purpose of the Friends in buying New Jersey was the same as actuated them in the establishment of Pennsylvania, that is, to afford a refuge from the persecution to which they were subjected in England which became intense after the Duke of York succeeded to the throne with the title of James II in 1685. This led to a very extensive migration which resulted in the settlement of Plainfield and the adjacent territory. There was also a considerable influx of Scotch Covenanters, fleeing from similar persecution, and many settlers came from New York and New England.

What the Friends found when they came to Plainfield as is usually the case in a new country, the progress of settlement was along the water courses and the first settlers reached the site of Plainfield by way of the Raritan River, Bound Brook, Cedar Brook and Green Brook, ascending the latter as far as Scotch Plains, and their first farms were laid out on the level lands upon either side of these streams. The country was an unbroken wilderness, covered with a dense forest and traversed only by the trails of the Indians. All the possessions which the settlers brought with them, and these were numerous, as they were a well-to-do class of people generally, were transported in sailing vessels up the Raritan River and then carried in boats which were poled up the brooks against the current of the streams. Travel by land was possible only on foot or horseback along the Indian trails.

Payment was made to the Indians for all land taken and, as is well known, the friends never had any difficulties with the original inhabitants of the country, to whom they were known as the "People of Peace."

To the level lands upon which they located, the early settlers gave the name of "the Plains" and the little group of houses soon became known as "The Quaker Settlement on the Plains", the first mention of the name "Plainfield" not appearing until 1707. The Watchung Mountains were termed by them the "Blue Hills" and the highlands at Netherwood were called the "Short Hills".

The Friendly Families among the first families who bought land, cleared the forests and established homes here were many whose names are still prominent in the community, though not all of them are yet identified with the Friends. Chief among these were the Websters. The Websters were of Scotch origin. William Webster, the founder, settled east of Plainfield about 1685. His descendants have always lived on adjacent territory. William Webster's oldest son was William Webster, Jr., born in 1692. He married Susannah Cowperthwaite and soon afterwards began housekeeping - about 1718-20 - not far from this spot, on a large farm through which Cedar Brook ran, and which probably extended to Green Brook. This pioneer's home was on the south side of the stream where Prospect Avenue now crosses. In this home, one of the earliest inland settlements, were eleven children born, and here the Webster homestead remained for generations.

The first child was John, born in 1718, who in 1743 married Anna Taylor, granddaughter of Richard Hartshorn of distinguished Quaker stock from Middletown. This family still owns the Highlands of the Navesink, near Sandy Hook. John and his younger brother, Hugh - who married Sarah Marsh in 1753 - were prominently instrumental in 1788 in locating the present Plainfield Meeting House on the three-acre lot where it stands today. The lot is part of the original Webster farm.

The Websters were mainly instrumental in opening in 1763, the roadway, which was known afterward as the road to Rahway, later as Peace Street and now as Watchung Avenue. It was they who built the first grist mill, on Green Brook, at the head of Peace Street. In 1782, Taylor Webster, a son of the builder, was granted by his father the privilege of constructing a race-way from the pond to the new mill on the mountain road, now Somerset Street. The Webster family may properly be credited with localizing the town of Plainfield.

The Vails. No family name is more honorably and continuously associated with the welfare of the Friends in this locality than that of the Vails. In 1687 mention is made of John Vail as an active member of the Society. His name is found first in the primitive annals of Salem,

Mass. about 1650 and is discovered subsequently in Westchester County, N.Y., from whence he moved to East Jersey about 1685.

There were two prominent sons, John Vail, Jr., born in 1685, and Samuel Vail. John married in 1712, Martha Fitz Randolph of Woodbridge. The farm of John Vail extended from near present Richmond Street on both sides of Green Brook to the vicinity of Netherwood Avenue.

Samuel Vail, son of the original John, in 1725 married Sarah Farrington, of Westchester County, N.Y., where he lived and died. He was a Friend, and about the date of his marriage purchased a large plantation on Green Brook near present Dunnellen. This land was occupied by his two sons, John and Stephen. John Vail, oldest son of Samuel, married in 1730 Margaret Laing, daughter of John and Elizabeth Shotwell Laing. To each of his eight sons he gave a farm; four, John, David, Abraham and Joseph (a son by his second wife, Mary Laing) at Green Brook; and four, Daniel, Isaac, Jacob and Benjamin, in Passaic Valley, near Basking Ridge.

Stephen Vail, the other son of Samuel, in 1733 married Esther Smith. Their children were Thomas, Benjamin, Stephen, Abigail, Abraham and Sarah. Some of the Vails still live upon the original John Vail Tract.

The Fitz Randolphs. Nathaniel Fitz Randolph was the oldest son of the largest and most influential family in this part of the colony before the Revolution. The founder of these distinguished people in America was Edward Fitz Randolph, of England, who came to America in 1630. Nathaniel, eldest of ten children, was born at Barnstable, Mass., in 1642. He and his immediate descendants were the only members of this prominent family belonging to the Friends. It is thought Nathaniel joined the Society at his marriage in 1662. After removal to the neighborhood of Woodbridge, N.J., Nathaniel filled all the local and county offices. In 1704 his house was opened for weekly meetings of the Friends. He died in 1713. His descendants have married with the Hulls, the Kinseys, the Hartshorns, the Hamptons, the Marshes, the Vails, the Laings, the Websters, the Shotwells and the Smiths.

The Shotwells. Prominent in the early beginning of the society in this vicinity was Abraham Shotwell, who, though not himself a Quaker, was warmly in sympathy with the common people in their contentions with the Lords Proprietors' government about titles to land. Shotwell's independence resulted in the confiscation of his property in Elizabethtown. After his death two sons, Daniel and John, succeeded, under the Quaker management of 1683, in securing restoration to the family. John, in 1679, married Elizabeth Burton. For generations since descendants have lived in Union county. Marriage with the Thorns, Laings, Websters, Vails, Marshes, Pounds and other pioneer settlers has given the State some of its most useful and prominent citizens. At the opening of this century the names of eighty-six Shotwells are recorded in the Society.

The first mention of this locality as Plainfield is noticed in connection with the register of the birth of one of John Shotwell's grandchildren. His daughter Elizabeth, had married John Laing in 1705, and their daughter Elizabeth, the record states, was "born at Plainfield ye 11th of ye 10th month, 1707". Earlier reference to this place had been made as the "Quaker settlement on the Plains", to distinguish it from the small colony at Scotch Plains. The first marriage in the present Plainfield Meeting House was that of Amy Shotwell to Charles Beooks.

The Laings. The Laing family composed a prominent part of the first permanent settlers in this neighborhood. John Laing, the progenitor of this long line in East Jersey, came over from Craigforth, Aberdeen County, Scotland, August 1685, landing in Amboy, near which place for a few years he lived with his wife Margaret and his children, John, Abraham, William, Christiana and Isabel. In 1698 he moved to "the Plains" near where South Plainfield now is. His son John married, in 1708, Elizabeth Shotwell, a direct descendent of the original Abraham Shotwell. His daughter Isabel, in 1700, married Joseph Fitz Randolph, son of Nathaniel. Both families were always active Friends. In 1725 weekday meetings were established at John Laing's. The location was so easy of access to Friends living along Green Brook, Cedar Brook and vicinity, that by 1731-36, a meeting house was built which was the beginning of the Plainfield Society. The MarshesThe original ancestors of the Marsh family in the United States were three brothers, born in England, who came to America in the first half of the seventeenth century. John Marsh settled in Connecticut in 1639, George Marsh made a permanent settlement at Hingham, Mass., and Samuel Marsh

after a short stay in New Haven colony moved to this section of New Jersey, where he became the owner of much land and the progenitor of most of those in Union County bearing his name. Fields, Pounds and ThornsEarly representatives of these families came from Long Island. The Fields of Piscataway are descended from John Field, who came from Flushing about 1690-95, and settled on a large plantation along the Raritan River.

Joseph and Mary Thorn, of Flushing, L.I., had a son Jacob, born in 1700, who in 1723 married Susannah Shotwell and settled in Middlesex County, near here. Their descendants were mostly Friends.

The ancestor of the Pounds of New Jersey was John Pound, and early settler in Piscataway, whose son Elijah Pound, born in 1712, was a prominent and influential member of this meeting in its first history. With those of the Thorns the names of this family are among the oldest on the Friend's records.

Other Names. The Bloomfields were among the earliest settlers in Middlesex County. Ezekiel in 1680 married Hope Fitz Randolph, a sister of Nathaniel. His great-grandson, Joseph Bloomfield, was Attorney-General of New Jersey in 1785 and governor of the State from 1801-12.

The Dunhams of Quaker faith were of different ancestry than the Baptist family of that name who settled in Piscataway. The founder of the Dunham Friends was Jonathan Dunham, of Massachusetts, who settled in Woodbridge.

The Cowperthwaites descended from Hugh, of North England. He came to America in 1648 with his wife Elizabeth. About 1674 he settled at Flushing . His descendants married with the Plainfield Friends.

The Plainfield Meeting. The Plainfield Meeting of the Society of Friends had its beginning in a meeting established at Perth Amboy in 1686, which was the third in the state, earlier meetings having been established at Shrewsbury in 1670 and at Middletown in 1675.

No meeting house was built at Perth Amboy and in 1704 the meeting was moved to Woodbridge, where it met at the house of Nathaniel Fitz Randolph until 1714 when a meeting house was completed. The Plainfield Friends became members of this meeting and were faithful in their attendance until 1721 when they petitioned for leave to meet at the home of John Laing in Piscataway Township, near the present grounds of the Plainfield country Club.

The request was granted and the Plainfield Friends met at John Laing's house until his death in 1731, when he left them a plot of ground as a site for a meeting house, which was built in the same year and was known as the Plainfield Meeting House. It was 24 feet square and 14 feet "between joynts" which probably means between the sills and the plates.

This house was occupied until 1788 when the present meeting house on Watchung Avenue was built on a plot of three acres bought from John Webster. The cost of the land and the fencing of it was œ47 14s 3d, or about $235 (1929) of which possibly $200.00 was the cost of the land. The cost of the building was œ474 7s 10d, or about $2,300.00. Except for œ13 10s, which was obtained by the sale of the old meeting house and lot, the entire amount was raised by subscription, which was quite an undertaking in view of the fact that the entire population of the community was less than 200 persons.

This meeting house has been in continuous use since that time and in 1885 the Centennial of its building was observed with appropriate ceremonies at which time a history of the meeting was read by Margaret Fitz Randolph Vail, a descendant of two of the most prominent Friendly families already mentioned, and the Clerk of the City, Oliver B. Leonard, delivered an address on the "Early Friends of Plainfield", from both of which the facts in this paper have been largely derived. Another celebration was held on the 125th Anniversary in 1913.

The Present Title of the Plainfield Meeting. The business sessions of the local meetings of the Religious Society of Friends are held once a month and so are termed "Monthly Meetings". Also, it is the custom to include more than one local meeting in a single Monthly Meeting. For this reason, the Plainfield Meeting was joined with the Rahway Meeting many years ago with the title of "The Rahway and Plainfield Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends:, which title is still retained, although the Rahway Meeting passed out of existence some years ago. Burying GroundsThe plot of land on the border of his farm which was left by John Laing to the Plainfield Meeting in 1731 was large enough to include a burying ground also and when the lot occupied by the first meeting house was re-sold to the Laing family in 1788, it would appear that the burying ground was retained as it was still in existence more than one hundred years later and at the celebration of the Centennial of the Meeting House in 1888, it was strongly urged that the old burying ground should be enclosed and suitably marked. This, however, was not done and the old burying ground appears since to have been ploughed over and obliterated, although its site probably could be determined by proper search. The present burying ground, as is well known, is situated in the rear of the Meeting House upon a part of the original plot.

Oh my gosh! I thought I sent that to you, but obviously not. Must be old-timer's short memory loss.

Here it is: 1024 Princeton Ave. N, Wenatchee. same zip code.

We haven't moved entirely in yet, so we are getting mail at both places for a while yet. Have not sold the Ohme place yet either. It could be an interesting winter - an awfully lot of stuff still here.

October thru January for us, very interesting with unexpected events. Bob had a detached retina the first part of October. Only one doctor does that surgery here, so first the eye dr. sent us to Bellevue / Seattle where they would have done the surgery but we would not be able to travel the passes for at least a week or two. We didn't; want to stay there for at least a week nor come home via the Gorge and Richland (9 hr drive???), so we came back and asked about Spokane. He had surgery there, with a gas bubble and buckle. A couple weeks ago we went back to Spokane and he had a laser repair on a tear in his other eye. Monday we went back for a checkup with good news mostly. I'm putting eye drops in the eye recovering from the detachment for a couple months to help reduce macular retinal edema, somewhat common occurrence after this surgery. He can see with both eyes, it's just double vision and nearsightedness.

We're on our way out in a few minutes to do more at the Princeton house. More news soon.

Hope you and all your loved ones have a very enjoyable Thanksgiving!

Luv n Hugs,

Jan and all

Her ancestors moved from the Netherlands to Scotland to South Africa. I also bought a sequential compression device to help control the swelling. It has four divisions within each device that fits over the legs. Then it compresses the first section, releases the pressure, then compresses divisions1 and 2, releases, divisons 1,2, and 3, etc. Each compression lasts about 9 seconds and the release about 7 seconds. You can vary the pressure and it has a timer up to an hour. We try to get in 4 hours a day. It does do some good. I also massage her legs for 40 minutes at bedtime.

meaning to us, because of the determination of our daughter to do something concrete about these niche cancers that have very little in the way of research. After reading Susan's letter, perhaps you may choose to help Susan and future Cancer victims similar to her by supporting our daughter's effort in raising research funds. We hope that it raises the awareness of these types of cancers as well. We live with the uncertainty and unease of its return daily, yet most of the world has no awareness of what additional research can accomplish! If you choose to contribute, the easiest way is to go to the website listed at the bottom of the letter. If you are unable, then please at least share this with someone so they can learn more about this disease in a more personal way. We can only conquer that which we know about and we only know about that which is shared with us. Thank you and may God bless and protect you from these diseases. Larry

I am including this letter to Sandy so that she knows what I sent. She made a donation yesterday for which we all are thankful.

Dear Family and friends…..this is a request…from someone you know… ME…..and I pray that you will do more than read and delete. This is about a subject many of us know about….CANCER. 2008 the beast hit our house with an impending death sentence without treatment and hoped for remission of 20 months with treatment. I have just surpassed NINE years. What is the difference from projected and actual? RESEARCH is the answer. In 2008 there were only 2 protocols to use when a person was identified and two trials. They gave me the protocol that is too hard for some people to survive. By the Grace of God, I did. As research has progressed in this field, more and more trials and new treatment plans are being tried and tested and a couple have found success (not in curing but in maintaining remission). I can and will live with that fact. BUT MORE Research is needed.

In 2008 Our daughter Lauren Hodges, told me that she felt so helpless knowing that people did not understand that all cancers are not the same and need different treatment. She knew that Mantle Cell Lymphoma was a recently identified strain of Lymphoma and even today I get doctors who tell me, "I don't really know what to expect because I don't know Mantle Cell." Not a secure feeling.
ANYWAY in 2008 Lauren undertook joining an organization that trains and does fundraisers for Leukemia and Lymphoma awareness and research. She ran, swam and biked near the Potomac River outside of Washington DC with others doing the same fundraising for people they loved. She raised $7000 for research. We were proud of her stamina and persistence.

A couple of months ago Lauren again came to us and told us that 2018 has several highlights. It will be 10 year from my first cancer diagnosis and I have had two other diagnoses of cancer since (breast and uterine). 2018 will find her hitting the age of 40 with 10 years of being married to her best friend and encourager (and darn great man). It will also be the celebration of our 50th anniversary (how is that possible, I don't usually even feel 49 years old). She said that she wanted to do one more big fund raiser……..She joined the team with the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society that is raising money by going to climb Mount Kilimanjaro in Africa. As a mom in a turmoil world, I worry. As a mom I worry about finances and health and family…..Yet I have taught my children to listen to God and at times that means to LET GO and LET GOD.

Larry and I are behind her. She has the vaccinations done, paperwork in, is doing personal training with a group that understands what is entailed. She had bought her pack equipment and we bought her tickets to Africa. None of these expenses will come from the money she raises. She leaves February 16, 2018……only slightly more than a month. She needs OUR help!
I have included a link to her page on the web which gives more detail about why and where and all. IT is a link to the donation page. I am personally asking for you to consider a gift in my name or another friend/family member you have loved. This would be more special to me than any 50th anniversary gift you might give me. Supporting our daughter AND raising awareness and money for research is our goal. Please pray and look into this…..give what you can.

Dear Lorna,
Thanks for the birthday wishes.I'm not sure I can get my computer to let me print anything that contains information on living people, so I will just type informaton, since I cannot find a blank form I like.like,.

1. our first child is frederick, known in the business world as Fredand to family and friends as He ma as Fritz. He turned 60 in Sept. His wife is Beth. They live near Kokomo with 2 horses and 2 cats The horses are Kucky and Duke, There are no children.Fritz works as a consultant for Price, Waterhouse, Coopers.Fritz is 6'2" and built like my Dad.
2. Lisa is married to Scott Donaho. Both are 58 yrs old. They have 2 children, Emily, who works in a bankand takes online courses in finance, and Michael, in the Army, in South Korea right now.Mike and Ceci are as tall as Fritz. Mike is built big like Dad and Fritz
3. Dan, 55,married to Karen, has Mjorsor MA I don't know which, incomputer science from Purdue this past year,he and his supervisor at Hewlett Packard and another Hpcomputer scientist left HP to set upa start-up.They write software concerning security and the cloud. Ir you don't understand that, you aren't alone. I haven't understoo d what he's doing for several years, except that he invents things. Dan was particularly irritated by Hp's refusal to let him choose the projects he works on and the other people to work with him.He and Karen have no children, except for all the children in the neighborhood.

4. Katrina,is married to Richard, both 49, I may sometimes refer to her as Trina. Sheis a chemist working in Rand D for a pharmaceutical company,Rich has retired after 26 years in the military. He is now doing the same work as a civilian.They have 4 daughters and 2 grandchildren,The eldest daughteris Amelia Xanthe. She is 3 weeks older than Emily. Because of the similarity in first names, this granddaughter has gone by her nickname, Xani, Their 2nd daughter, Sarah Carolyn, was until recentlyknown as Caro or CoCo because that is all her baby sister could manage,The 4^{3rd}, cecilia, now finishing her graduate degree , has always been ceci. The youngest, was Lilith,17 called /lili until this year when she became Circuitry. I notice that her daddy calls her Cirk. I guess I can live with that.Because of an error in the womb, they had a hard time to stop Ceci's growth, so she is 6'2" Her boyfriend, Jay is 6'9".Ceci is built like a girl, fortunately.

I think that includes all the nicknames.I don't have much contact with the other cousins. Pam sometimes has something on Facebook.I sometimes get email from Kathy.I believe she is taking up the family history where her mother left off.I have hit a couple of brick walls, so I am not moving very far. Xani is studying child psychology, on her own financially, so it's slow going. /her husband has some financial aid from his first term in the Air Force. Xani was a National Merit Finalist, but she wasted it and also Fritz' financial assistance.There are no second chances with him.When the trust fund is gone, it's gone.

Sometimes I still miss having you to share "oh kids" with.I still remember Hal saying that you and I didn't look anything alike. It wasn't until I looked at the photos of the reunion that I realized how very wrong he was.Of course Ihad looked in the mirror at my eyes and then at my Putt cousin's eyes.none looked like mine. When I got some Rensch cousins, none of their eyes matched either. When I got tall enough, I realized that mypaternal grandmother had eyes shaped like mine, and when Emily grew tall enough, I realized that I had passed those slightly oriental eyes on to my beautiful granddaughter.

The Story of the Friends in Plainfield

Including A History of Early Quaker Families

by William L. DudleyMarch 29, 1929

A faded typed carbon copy of the following history was found in the archives of the Rahway & Plainfield Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends. In connection with the efforts surrounding a recent successful application for a NJ Historical Trust Grant to restore portions of the Meeting House exterior, a number of historical documents surfaced. The meeting recently authorized a committee to assemble and preserve this material, and this web page posting is one result of that effort. ©1998, Rahway & Plainfield Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends.

The story of the Friends in Plainfield . . .

> . . . is the story of the community itself for the first hundred years or more, for not only was Plainfield settled by the Friends, but theirs was the dominant influence from its first settlement at about the beginning of the Eighteenth Century until after the coming of the railroad, and the name which they gave to the street upon which their Meeting House is still located, that of Peace Street, lasted until about forty years ago (1889) when the name was changed to Watchung Avenue by a resolution of the City Council. Why the Friends Came to PlainfieldWhy the Friends came to Plainfield is a question which is easily answered, for they were the owners not only of Plainfield but of the entire State of New Jersey. From High Point at the northern end to Cape May at the southernmost tip and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Delaware River, the entire state had passed to the ownership of the Friends by purchase from Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret less than twenty years after these proprietors had received it as a gift from the Duke of York at the time the English took over the Dutch possessions in America.

West Jersey was bought by the Quakers of Pennsylvania in 1675 and East Jersey in 1682. The latter group was headed by William Penn himself, and the purchase price was œ3500, equal to about $17,000 in present (1929) currency. Of course this sum was proportionately very much greater in those days than now but even so, it was a purchase which would compare favorably with the celebrated sale of Manhattan Island for $24., for Penn's bargain included the whole of the present state with the exception of the extreme southern and western part.

The purpose of the Friends in buying New Jersey was the same as actuated them in the establishment of Pennsylvania, that is, to afford a refuge from the persecution to which they were subjected in England which became intense after the Duke of York succeeded to the throne with the title of James II in 1685. This led to a very extensive migration which resulted in the settlement of Plainfield and the adjacent territory. There was also a considerable influx of Scotch Covenanters, fleeing from similar persecution, and many settlers came from New York and New England.

What the Friends found when they came to Plainfield as is usually the case in a new country, the progress of settlement was along the water courses and the first settlers reached the site of Plainfield by way of the Raritan River, Bound Brook, Cedar Brook and Green Brook, ascending the latter as far as Scotch Plains, and their first farms were laid out on the level lands upon either side of these streams. The country was an unbroken wilderness, covered with a dense forest and traversed only by the trails of the Indians. All the possessions which the settlers brought with them, and these were numerous, as they were a well-to-do class of people generally, were transported in sailing vessels up the Raritan River and then carried in boats which were poled up the brooks against the current of the streams. Travel by land was possible only on foot or horseback along the Indian trails.

Payment was made to the Indians for all land taken and, as is well known, the friends never had any difficulties with the original inhabitants of the country, to whom they were known as the "People of Peace."

To the level lands upon which they located, the early settlers gave the name of "the Plains" and the little group of houses soon became known as "The Quaker Settlement on the Plains", the first mention of the name "Plainfield" not appearing until 1707. The Watchung Mountains were termed by them the "Blue Hills" and the highlands at Netherwood were called the "Short Hills".

The Friendly Families among the first families who bought land, cleared the forests and established homes here were many whose names are still prominent in the community, though not all of them are yet identified with the Friends. Chief among these were the Websters. The Websters were of Scotch origin. William Webster, the founder, settled east of Plainfield about 1685. His descendants have always lived on adjacent territory. William Webster's oldest son was William Webster, Jr., born in 1692. He married Susannah Cowperthwaite and soon afterwards began housekeeping - about 1718-20 - not far from this spot, on a large farm through which Cedar Brook ran, and which probably extended to Green Brook. This pioneer's home was on the south side of the stream where Prospect Avenue now crosses. In this home, one of the earliest inland settlements, were eleven children born, and here the Webster homestead remained for generations.

The first child was John, born in 1718, who in 1743 married Anna Taylor, granddaughter of Richard Hartshorn of distinguished Quaker stock from Middletown. This family still owns the Highlands of the Navesink, near Sandy Hook. John and his younger brother, Hugh - who married Sarah Marsh in 1753 - were prominently instrumental in 1788 in locating the present Plainfield Meeting House on the three-acre lot where it stands today. The lot is part of the original Webster farm.

The Websters were mainly instrumental in opening in 1763, the roadway, which was known afterward as the road to Rahway, later as Peace Street and now as Watchung Avenue. It was they who built the first grist mill, on Green Brook, at the head of Peace Street. In 1782, Taylor Webster, a son of the builder, was granted by his father the privilege of constructing a race-way from the pond to the new mill on the mountain road, now Somerset Street. The Webster family may properly be credited with localizing the town of Plainfield.

The Vails. No family name is more honorably and continuously associated with the welfare of the Friends in this locality than that of the Vails. In 1687 mention is made of John Vail as an active member of the Society. His name is found first in the primitive annals of Salem,

Mass. about 1650 and is discovered subsequently in Westchester County, N.Y., from whence he moved to East Jersey about 1685.

There were two prominent sons, John Vail, Jr., born in 1685, and Samuel Vail. John married in 1712, Martha Fitz Randolph of Woodbridge. The farm of John Vail extended from near present Richmond Street on both sides of Green Brook to the vicinity of Netherwood Avenue.

Samuel Vail, son of the original John, in 1725 married Sarah Farrington, of Westchester County, N.Y., where he lived and died. He was a Friend, and about the date of his marriage purchased a large plantation on Green Brook near present Dunnellen. This land was occupied by his two sons, John and Stephen. John Vail, oldest son of Samuel, married in 1730 Margaret Laing, daughter of John and Elizabeth Shotwell Laing. To each of his eight sons he gave a farm; four, John, David, Abraham and Joseph (a son by his second wife, Mary Laing) at Green Brook; and four, Daniel, Isaac, Jacob and Benjamin, in Passaic Valley, near Basking Ridge.

Stephen Vail, the other son of Samuel, in 1733 married Esther Smith. Their children were Thomas, Benjamin, Stephen, Abigail, Abraham and Sarah. Some of the Vails still live upon the original John Vail Tract.

The Fitz Randolphs. Nathaniel Fitz Randolph was the oldest son of the largest and most influential family in this part of the colony before the Revolution. The founder of these distinguished people in America was Edward Fitz Randolph, of England, who came to America in 1630. Nathaniel, eldest of ten children, was born at Barnstable, Mass., in 1642. He and his immediate descendants were the only members of this prominent family belonging to the Friends. It is thought Nathaniel joined the Society at his marriage in 1662. After removal to the neighborhood of Woodbridge, N.J., Nathaniel filled all the local and county offices. In 1704 his house was opened for weekly meetings of the Friends. He died in 1713. His descendants have married with the Hulls, the Kinseys, the Hartshorns, the Hamptons, the Marshes, the Vails, the Laings, the Websters, the Shotwells and the Smiths.

The Shotwells. Prominent in the early beginning of the society in this vicinity was Abraham Shotwell, who, though not himself a Quaker, was warmly in sympathy with the common people in their contentions with the Lords Proprietors' government about titles to land. Shotwell's independence resulted in the confiscation of his property in Elizabethtown. After his death two sons, Daniel and John, succeeded, under the Quaker management of 1683, in securing restoration to the family. John, in 1679, married Elizabeth Burton. For generations since descendants have lived in Union county. Marriage with the Thorns, Laings, Websters, Vails, Marshes, Pounds and other pioneer settlers has given the State some of its most useful and prominent citizens. At the opening of this century the names of eighty-six Shotwells are recorded in the Society.

The first mention of this locality as Plainfield is noticed in connection with the register of the birth of one of John Shotwell's grandchildren. His daughter Elizabeth, had married John Laing in 1705, and their daughter Elizabeth, the record states, was "born at Plainfield ye 11th of ye 10th month, 1707". Earlier reference to this place had been made as the "Quaker settlement on the Plains", to distinguish it from the small colony at Scotch Plains. The first marriage in the present Plainfield Meeting House was that of Amy Shotwell to Charles Beooks.

The Laings. The Laing family composed a prominent part of the first permanent settlers in this neighborhood. John Laing, the progenitor of this long line in East Jersey, came over from Craigforth, Aberdeen County, Scotland, August 1685, landing in Amboy, near which place for a few years he lived with his wife Margaret and his children, John, Abraham, William, Christiana and Isabel. In 1698 he moved to "the Plains" near where South Plainfield now is. His son John married, in 1708, Elizabeth Shotwell, a direct descendent of the original Abraham Shotwell. His daughter Isabel, in 1700, married Joseph Fitz Randolph, son of Nathaniel. Both families were always active Friends. In 1725 weekday meetings were established at John Laing's. The location was so easy of access to Friends living along Green Brook, Cedar Brook and vicinity, that by 1731-36, a meeting house was built which was the beginning of the Plainfield Society. The MarshesThe original ancestors of the Marsh family in the United States were three brothers, born in England, who came to America in the first half of the seventeenth century. John Marsh settled in Connecticut in 1639, George Marsh made a permanent settlement at Hingham, Mass., and Samuel Marsh

after a short stay in New Haven colony moved to this section of New Jersey, where he became the owner of much land and the progenitor of most of those in Union County bearing his name. Fields, Pounds and ThornsEarly representatives of these families came from Long Island. The Fields of Piscataway are descended from John Field, who came from Flushing about 1690-95, and settled on a large plantation along the Raritan River.

Joseph and Mary Thorn, of Flushing, L.I., had a son Jacob, born in 1700, who in 1723 married Susannah Shotwell and settled in Middlesex County, near here. Their descendants were mostly Friends.

The ancestor of the Pounds of New Jersey was John Pound, and early settler in Piscataway, whose son Elijah Pound, born in 1712, was a prominent and influential member of this meeting in its first history. With those of the Thorns the names of this family are among the oldest on the Friend's records.

Other Names. The Bloomfields were among the earliest settlers in Middlesex County. Ezekiel in 1680 married Hope Fitz Randolph, a sister of Nathaniel. His great-grandson, Joseph Bloomfield, was Attorney-General of New Jersey in 1785 and governor of the State from 1801-12.

The Dunhams of Quaker faith were of different ancestry than the Baptist family of that name who settled in Piscataway. The founder of the Dunham Friends was Jonathan Dunham, of Massachusetts, who settled in Woodbridge.

The Cowperthwaites descended from Hugh, of North England. He came to America in 1648 with his wife Elizabeth. About 1674 he settled at Flushing . His descendants married with the Plainfield Friends.

The Plainfield Meeting. The Plainfield Meeting of the Society of Friends had its beginning in a meeting established at Perth Amboy in 1686, which was the third in the state, earlier meetings having been established at Shrewsbury in 1670 and at Middletown in 1675.

No meeting house was built at Perth Amboy and in 1704 the meeting was moved to Woodbridge, where it met at the house of Nathaniel Fitz Randolph until 1714 when a meeting house was completed. The Plainfield Friends became members of this meeting and were faithful in their attendance until 1721 when they petitioned for leave to meet at the home of John Laing in Piscataway Township, near the present grounds of the Plainfield country Club.

The request was granted and the Plainfield Friends met at John Laing's house until his death in 1731, when he left them a plot of ground as a site for a meeting house, which was built in the same year and was known as the Plainfield Meeting House. It was 24 feet square and 14 feet "between joynts" which probably means between the sills and the plates.

This house was occupied until 1788 when the present meeting house on Watchung Avenue was built on a plot of three acres bought from John Webster. The cost of the land and the fencing of it was œ47 14s 3d, or about $235 (1929) of which possibly $200.00 was the cost of the land. The cost of the building was œ474 7s 10d, or about $2,300.00. Except for œ13 10s, which was obtained by the sale of the old meeting house and lot, the entire amount was raised by subscription, which was quite an undertaking in view of the fact that the entire population of the community was less than 200 persons.

This meeting house has been in continuous use since that time and in 1885 the Centennial of its building was observed with appropriate ceremonies at which time a history of the meeting was read by Margaret Fitz Randolph Vail, a descendant of two of the most prominent Friendly families already mentioned, and the Clerk of the City, Oliver B. Leonard, delivered an address on the "Early Friends of Plainfield", from both of which the facts in this paper have been largely derived. Another celebration was held on the 125th Anniversary in 1913.

The Present Title of the Plainfield Meeting. The business sessions of the local meetings of the Religious Society of Friends are held once a month and so are termed "Monthly Meetings". Also, it is the custom to include more than one local meeting in a single Monthly Meeting. For this reason, the Plainfield Meeting was joined with the Rahway Meeting many years ago with the title of "The Rahway and Plainfield Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends:, which title is still retained, although the Rahway Meeting passed out of existence some years ago. Burying GroundsThe plot of land on the border of his farm which was left by John Laing to the Plainfield Meeting in 1731 was large enough to include a burying ground also and when the lot occupied by the first meeting house was re-sold to the Laing family in 1788, it would appear that the burying ground was retained as it was still in existence more than one hundred years later and at the celebration of the Centennial of the Meeting House in 1888, it was strongly urged that the old burying ground should be enclosed and suitably marked. This, however, was not done and the old burying ground appears since to have been ploughed over and obliterated, although its site probably could be determined by proper search. The present burying ground, as is well known, is situated in the rear of the Meeting House upon a part of the original plot.

still receiving rations. In 1711, Sebastian was a Private in Captain Hartman Winedecker's Company of Palatine Volunteers in the Expedition against Canada in Queen Ann's War. Prior to 1717, Sebastian, wife, and three children, lived at Gerlachsdorf in the Schoharie Valley of New York. This village no longer exists, but lay about two miles south of the present village of Central Bridge, and about two miles north of the present Old Fort Museum, which is located on or near the former village of Foxtown. In 1711, Sebastian lived at Annsburg, one of the four Palatine villages (or camps) on the Livingston Manor, located on the east side of the Hudson River, some fifty or sixty miles southeast of the village of Gerlachsdorf. The story has often been told how the first Palatines who came to Pennsylvania, cut a road through the forest from the Schoharie Valley to the Susquehanna Valley, built boats and rafts, floated their goods down the Susquehanna to the mouth of the Swatara Creek, ascended that creek, crossed the watershed into the Tulpehocken Valley, some seventeen miles northwest of Reading, where they settled in the spring of 1723. The known children of Sebastian and his wife were: Lawrence (probably born in Germany), Peter, born, Oct. 4, 1714 (according to the Second Record Book of the Schoharie Lutheran Church, Schoharie County, N. Y., located some twelve miles from Berne, Albany County, where it is said the Fishers lived for a time), John Jacob, born about 1720, and Ann Elizabeth, born about 1722. George Ulrich Fisher may also have been a son. Sebastian's name was on the first tax list compiled for the Tulpehocken section on January 10, 1725; it also appears on petitions in the years 1725, and 1727. Because he seems to prefer doing things out of the ordinary, he usually signed his name in some form of the Latin, giving rise to the belief that he may have had schooling beyond the average for that time and place. He was a Lutheran, and in 1727, or before, assisted in the founding of the Ried's Lutheran Church, then located some two miles east of the present town of Stouchsburg, Pa. Later, because of the influx of the Moravian influence in that church, he and about 160 other members of it, withdrew from Ried's Church, and formed the Christ (Tulpehocken) Lutheran Church in 1743. This church is located about a mile southwest of Stouchsburg. Sebastian's name was at the head of the list of the signers of the constitution of the new church. He, Christian Lauer, and George Unruh, each gave five acres from their farms for cemetery and church purposes. Tradition says that Peter, son of Sebastian, married Anna Dorothea Ball, in Albany or Schoharie County, N. Y., January 4, 1750. John Jacob, married Mary Elizabeth, daughter of John Frederick, in what is now Berks County, Pa., Dec. 9, 1743. Ann Elizabeth, married John Anspach (probably a son of Baltzer Anspach) in Berks County in 1744. Sebastian and Lawrence both owned land in what is today Marion Township, Berks County. John Jacob owned land and died in what was then Tulpehocken Township, Berks County, in 1803. The compiler has never been able to find a record of the death of Sebastian, or his son, Lawrence, in Pennsylvania, and believes that Sebastian and his sons Lawrence and Peter may have returned to New York about the year 1745.

John Lantz came to the Tulpehocken Region before May 13, 1723. No further record concerning the name can be found, and the compiler believes that the name really was "John Kantz," which in German was spelled Kuntz and Cons. Difficulty in deciphering the names of these people, because of the poor penmanship, may have led to a confusion. "John Cons" was listed on the first tax list for that section which was compiled on Jan. 10, 1725. Later lists do not seem to have either Lantz, Kantz, Kuntz, or Cons. The Kantz family at an early date spread over Berks, Lebanon, and Lancaster Counties.

John Peter Pacht came to the Tulpehocken region before May 13, 1723. Later lists do not contain the name, or one similar to it, nor do earlier lists carry the name. Here again there may have been a mistake in deciphering the name, due to the poor penmanship of the early writers. No one named Pacht owned any land in the section around the year 1732.

George Ried came to the Tulpehocken region before May 13, 1723. Tradition has it that he was a brother of Casper Ried. Some think he may have been the son of John George, and Anna Catherine Ried, immigrants. On Jan. 10, 1725, his name appeared on the first tax list compiled for the Tulpehocken rate. The records of Rev. Joshua Kocherthal state that on Jan. 22, 1716, John George Reed and Anna Margaret Shaffer (or Schaester) were sponsors at the baptism of John George, son of John and Elizabeth Moor, somewhere in the Hudson Valley. The child was born on Jan. 19th, 1716. About 1732, George owned a tract of land about a half mile north of the present Tulpehocken Reformed Church, west of Stouchsburg, Pa.

In the 1790 census of Hereford Twp, Berks Co, Pa, there is, very legibly written, a Jacob Putt as head of household. In this household there is one free white male of 16 years or upward; two free white males under 16 years; and 1 free white female.

In the 1790 census of Oley Twp, Berks Co, Pa, are John Putt Sr & John Putt Jr. In John Putt Senior's household were 4 f.w.m's of 16 yrs & upward and 4 f.w.f. Hard to interpret. In John, Junior's household were 1 f.w.m. of 16 & upward, 1 f.w.m under 16 yrs, & 1 f.w.f. I assume this to John Putt & his wife and 1 son. On my print out of John Sr's page is a note that I found on the Berks Co. Web: Warrantee - John Potts - Jan 8, 1755, 60 acres. Since there was also a prominent family named Potts, I don't know if this was actually John Potts or John Putt.

1800 Census - In Hereford T, Berks Co, was a Jacob Putt with the following members of his household: 1 f.w.m under 10, 1 f.w.m 10 thru 15, 1 f.w.m 26 thru 44, 2 f.w.f under 10 and 1 f.w.f 26 thru 44. In Heidelberg T, Berks Co, was Jacob Botz with 1 f.w.m under 10, 1 f.w.m 26 thru 44 and 1 f.w.f 16 thru 25. I am not at all sure that either of these men is our Jacob Putt. There was also Benjamin Putt in Heidelberg. In his household there were 1 f.w.m under 10, 1 f.w.m 26 thru 44 and 1 f.w.f 16 thru 25. I have postulated that Benjamin may be a near relative of Jacob - brother, son, etc.

In 1810, I have singled out 3 Potts in Heidelberg T: Jacob, who fell into the 45 and over slot, John, who was between 16 and 25 and Benjamin, also 45 and over. Jacob & John are listed one after the other, so I am inclined to consider them father and son, though whether they are Potts or Putts I don't know. This Jacob has several young children, so I ~~think~~ am afraid that he is not likely to be ours. If George, eldest son of Jacob & Catherine was b. 1814, there are way too many children here.

We got to pan for gold in Nome. The guy who helped us was a colorful character who had been an actor earlier in his life. I confess to needing help also but ended up with better and more abundant loot because of it!!!!! 🙂 We both found small gem stones (garnets, etc.) in addition to gold. Did you?

What was Glitter Gulch like? We didn't get to spend any time there. Did you get to go to the museum in Fairbanks? There is supposed to be a nice museum there in association with AU.

I wanted to go on the plane ride to see Denali up close but Fritz was not as excited about it as me. Was the play at the dinner theater any good?

Our dinner on the train wasn't real exciting either except the presentation: crystal, silver, & linen. The couple that we sat with were not very memorable either. Usually, we meet interesting people on our trips. The train was very full & it was raining the whole trip. The people sitting in front of us were very loud and from NY. They complained the whole way. I spent a great deal of time standing between the train cars in order to get some peace and quiet!!! I am glad that you had a much more pleasant experience than we did!

I was amazed at the security on the ship when we were in Greece & Italy. Every time we went off & on it was like going through airport security. That was good I guess but it did seem like a lot. (A while ago, our travel agent told us that she suspected that the next big terrorist attack would be on a large ocean going tour ship loaded with Americans. So, the security is a good idea even if it is a pain.)

Anxious to hear more! 🙂

Beth

Dear Carolyn & Florian,

Lorna ask me if I remembered when she was little and I remembered these photos.

I'm working on all my numerous note books and making them easier to read. I also have started DeVae Books for each of my children, my niece Anne, and Eunice and Dave DeVae.

I'm without a computer now — my old one stopped working and I hope to get a new one this fall.

The photos were taken after I was out of High School 1934. I was dressed for church in my finery. I designed the Navy Blue Wool Suit and Pink Satin Blouse. My mother cut the pattern and made it.

I'm finishing the Putt, Getz, Palm Note Book. The Getz dont have birth dates or any marriage or death dates. All this work was done before I had a computer. I'm looking for information on Nicholas Getz the one from Germany. Otherwise I have some neat information.

I've had a bad summer. I went through an infected tooth, medicine that made it all worse and finally denists decided I had to have it removed — all over a tooth!

I hope you both are doing well and have time to enjoy your family.

Much love,
Aunt Lurah

In the soft silence of his chamber, the Red One awoke, or was returned to consciousness by some message he alone received. At first only the careful opening of his eyelids revealed the change. The eyelids blinked, once, twice, and his eyes made a quick circuit of his chamber. Then the eyelids closed once more, and he lay quietly as though awaiting another message.

A few moments passed thus, before he extricated himself from the couch where he had lain for a long time. He believed it was a long time because of the dreams that had come to him there, more dreams than could have been dreamed in one night, or a week of nights or a year of nights. He glanced down at his body and was relieved to see that it did not appear to have changed.

As he moved toward the door of the chamber, he saw himself reflected in silvered glass beside the door. It was a reassuring, unchanged sight: the pale slender body topped by a patch of thick red hair over deep-set red-brown eyes.

The Red One wondered yet again at his being one of the Chosen. It had begun, he thought, in the first quarter of the 12th Manxian year, when he was a beginner in the Narcissan School for infants. It, whatever it was, must actually have begun before that, but at that time, the common people began to suspect what the astronomers had known for generations. Something frightening was happening in the galaxy, to the galaxy, perhaps.

All the Red One knew was that the citizens began to dreadful, frightening things to themselves & each other, while the leaders said, "We must have a plan." Then they said, "Don't be frightened. We have a wonderful plan."

As time passed, the Red One sensed that his parents were disappointed in him. He was not stupid, he learned well, but he did not like the Games. He was too small, too insignificant, except for his coloring, which was too brash, too gaudy. He was, in fact, a social misfit. He liked to be alone in the great library at Alexandria or in the park where the trees still struggled to send out new leaves. He was gifted in the study of languages and grew more + more clever in avoiding confrontations with his peers & his siblings + his parents. He slipped like a shadow ~~as quietly as possible~~ through his home, his school, + the streets.

No one was more surprised than he when he was chosen for the great Plan. When the Committee came to his city, they rejected outright the suggestions of the local committee. "We wish to see for ourselves," they intoned. So, for 3 solid weeks, the 16 year-old boys of the city were interviewed, measured, watched at the Games and in their classrooms, tested in every way possible. And at the end of it all, the Red One stood among the Chosen, although he had tried, as usual, to escape their notice.

He was not yet altogether sure what it was for which he had been chosen, but he thought now he knew why he had been chosen. It was for his ability to function without the support of teammates and for his problem-solving skills.

There had been the long hard months of training, with further testing. And at the end of the training, there were many fewer Chosen, but the Red One still stood firmly among them. Responding to the outraged objections of the father of one of the Unchosen, a Committee member had said bluntly, "We have searched for those who know how to survive!"

The Red One lifted from its hook the only garment he owned, the light-weight toga which was the common garb of the [illegible] male. Slipping it over his slender body, he opened the door and stepped softly into the next room ~~chamber~~.

Yes, it was as he remembered it. And, yes, he remembered the steps he must take, if he thought the new homeland satisfactory, to start the maturation of the clones which rested now in their own small chambers

As the Red One walked to the door, he wondered what lay outside. When he would throw open the heavy door that he had bolted so long ago, would he find himself still on the great plain of Danwas or would there be a new scene before him? The air in the antechamber seemed extraordinarily cool to him. Was the air-conditioning unit out of control? Envisioning green grass & tall golden trees, the Red One unbolted & opened the great outer door and staggered back, in dismay, as a howling wind blew a shocking amount of cold white matter at him.

~~[illegible]~~ forced the door shut & leaned against it in shock and fear. This was not a fit homeland. He dare not start life for the clones. Nor could he return. That had been made very clear before he left on this journey. He had had not been compelled to leave. They had given him the choice, but it had been clear that the future of his planet was growing short. He had taken a chance & this was how it was ending.

The thoughts began to circle & dart in his mind. It would be possible to return to his bed in the inner chamber & return to pseudo-sleep. The ship could would continue to tend him for a long time before its fuel was all used - he would die then, and the clones, too, but he and they would not know, would not mind.

Was there any way he could live in this strange cold place to which he had been delivered? If he had more clothing, but he didn't. Shivering from fear as much as cold he slid down to the floor & huddled there.

There were some fabrics in the storeroom, he recalled, but none that could stand up to that ferocious wind. Rubbing a hand through his red hair stirred the memory of pictures from the [illegible] that he had seen. The pictures were of small & large animals covered with hair. The animals no longer existed, but they had had hair all over their bodies. Yes, that would be warm.

Suddenly he rose and without hesitation went back inside the ship to the storeroom where he selected such materials as he thought he could use. Returning to the anteroom, he made a sort of nest-bed of his arm-load of fabrics & settled himself into it.

Days passed with little change. The Red One slept, thought, occasionally ate sparingly from his food supply & thought more. He would throw aside the fabrics & let the cold air flow over his skin for as long as he could stand it. He would open the outer door and let the wind touch him. He began to believe that his body was adjusting to the temperature, that it could stand more & more cold.

One day, as he tossed turned in his makeshift bed, his hand, happening to brush across his face, felt a sharp roughness. Startled, he looked at his hand. He smiled. There did appear to be a few reddish tufts of hair here & there on his hand - on both hands. And, yes, he could feel something on his face, also.

Of all the languages he had ever studied, there was one archaic tongue that seemed to be most appropriate for his new life. No one even knew how to pronounce the words & many of the words had not made any sense to his people. Now, some of them were beginning to fit this strange land.

As days & weeks passed, the Red One grew bold enough, or desperate enough, to step outside the ship for moments, then minutes, then an hour.

And as he grew bolder, the fierceness of the weather seemed to abate. The Red One began to travel farther away & to sleep outside ~~on~~ occasionally & then usually. He found things he could eat, roots, leaves & berries. He learned to dig under the layers of the wed white, to dig in the ground, to stuff the cold white into his mouth when thirsty.

I am surviving, he thought. Looking down at his body, he found it covered with shaggy red-brown hair. The soles of his feet were tough & hard & the tops were hairy.

This was not what he had hoped for, but this place had its own grand beauty. He had learned the seasons and how to store in the green season for the cold white season. He knew how to survive, but what was the point of it? He was so alone. It hurt him to think about another cold white season to survive by himself.

Then, his head slowly lifted, and his eyes moved up the slope of the great mountain. Although his mind had been somewhat dulled by hardships, he remembered the clones. He remembered the instructions he had been given, the duty he had.

He began the ascent at once, eagerly and joyfully. When he stood once more inside the ship which had brought him here, he was hesitant, a little fearful that something had gone wrong in his absence. He soon ascertained that all was still well. He began at once to start the process that would start the clones development.

He had some decisions to make, and he made them. The temperatures inside the growing chambers would be made as low as the clones could survive & grow in. The language that they'd would hear constantly would be the archaic tongue he himself now thought in. He made new tapes, giving new meanings to old words & new sounds to old spellings.

He watched over them as they developed. He fed into their learning tapes the information he knew they would need outside.

He saw their body hair grew and saw that some had thicker, warmer coverings than others. No matter, he thought, with many of us, we can catch one of the great cows that wander the hills and take it's hair to keep us warm.

He also saw that there were 2 kinds of clones, male, like him & female, yes, female. He had almost forgotten. He counted them again & yes, there ~~were~~ was one ~~more~~ extra female. One for him? Yes, of course. They would be mates. He would help her survive. He would help them all survive.

They would learn to live with the warm, the not warm & the cold. He nodded. It was better than the hot hot that had been overtaking the old home

The Mystery of The White Feather

"Oh, I just don't know where it could be," said Carolyn to Lorna Lee as they tramped through the orchard.

"Wait! Do you suppose it could be in this tree?" asked Lorna Lee.

"Look, here's a hollow limb!" she exclaimed, and the two stood on tiptoe, each trying to look for herself.

"Sh!" said Carolyn. "If the crazy thing's around and hears us, it might get mad!"

"And that would be too bad for us," Lorna Lee replied.

"Let's go try in the other part of the orchard," suggested Carolyn. So they walked over there.

"It might be in a clump of weeds," said Lorna Lee, looking in one at the same time.

"Oh, don't be silly, Lorna, it wouldn't be in such an obvious place," said Carolyn disgustedly. "I don't think even they are that dumb! At least they should know that the cattle might step on it."

Maybe that's why they cried.

"Well, why did your Aunt Betty think it was here?"

"Because she heard and saw one of them moving in here, you dope!" snapped Carolyn.

"Over here is a pile of logs; it might be in here," Lorna Lee said, as she ran over to it.

As the girls found nothing, they decided to look in more trees.

Lorna Lee was in a tree hunting when on the ground beneath she spied a white feather. "Oh, Carolyn, come here," she called. Here is a white feather. A clue at last!"

"Yes, and there's some way back here, too," Carolyn answered excitedly.

"All we'll have to do now is to follow the white feathers, and I think we'll find it."

"But where's the next feather?" queried Lorna Lee. "You go that way and I'll go this way, and one of us should find it."

After a long hunt, Lorna Lee at last came upon it, caught in the weeds.

They also found several others which led them straight across the orchard.

"Look! Over there's a wagon. We'll look in that," said Lorna Lee.

"Okay, but I want to look around here. You go look in the wagon," Carolyn answered. Carolyn wanted to hunt around an old dilapidated car. She hunted several minutes; then she let out with a triumphant cry. "Lorna Lee, come here! I've found it!"

"Oh, goody, where, where?" asked Lorna Lee excitedly.

"There", pointed Carolyn. And there in a corner of the old car lay seven hen's eggs.

Lorna Lee Putt

Maybe I'm overly sentimental. The last time I saw my cousin Lorna,was at her father's funeral. She said, "Rember Brandma's gravel pit? I've told my children how much fun we had there. I hope we can take them back to see it the next time we're in Indiana."

And David and I both sook our heads. "No," we said. "It's not the same at all. They've changed it."

Every time I think of it, I want to cry. I don't go back. I pass it only when there is no other choice. My children have never been there. How would they ever believe all the magic that was once there? Lorna's children won't believe it either, if she takes them there.

Here we are in the family album, Lorna and I, two darling little girls, with our youngest aunt. How old were we? Two? And Aunt Lurah about the age of my oldest son now. And here on the next page is a somewhat older Lorna with a little sister, both of them all arms, legs, eyes, hairbows and nervous energy. I thought they were beautiful with their straight black bangs and dark eyes. I still think so. Here I am, in another photo, taken the same day on Grandma's lawn. They thought I was beautiful. Sturdy little girls with blonde curls were in fashion then.

We probably weren't old enough to be turned loose in Grandma's pasture yet. I had the run of my parents' farm, but Lorna and Angie were Town children. Though they were less hemmed about emotionally, I was more free in physical space. Though now that I think about it, perhaps they weren't so free emotionally, either. All that intensity. What saved Lorna was four younger sisters.

Here's a picture of five of us cousins in a quiet moment. Some time that same day we were running wild in the gravel pit. Let me assure that, aside from a flowing spring and some shallow pools in the rainy season, water did not stand in this gravel pit. One end stood open, but the other end and two sides were steep, precipitous, and we ran down them shrieking. And we pretended. Great acts of heroism and derring-do were performed there. Lorna was always the ring-leader.

Perhaps if you close your eyes you can see us with your mind's eye - Lorna and Angie, thin and dark, David, blond and blue-eyed, his brown-eyed brother Dan whose copper hair gleamed in the sun and Carolyn, with blonde curls bouncing. We climb up, walk along the narrow edge, and run down screaming. Did our mothers know? I never thought about it then, and I don't know now.

There were several other babies in the family when Lorna, Angie and their baby sister moved to another state. David, Dan and I still haunted the gravel pit. There were hummocks and small pits to explore. We stalked Grandma's cows and each other and hid behind the tall poplars on the north side of the pit.

On the rare and wonderful times when Lorna and her family ame back to visit, we stole away to the gravel pit whenever we could. But now, some of the babies were old enough to join us. We didn't really like to take them because there was always one of them to fall down and cry or one who went back to the house to complain that the big kids were mea. The ones that always cried probably never felt the magic the rest of us felt there. Maybe that's why they cried.

As I grew up, the gravel pit became my secret place. I went there to be alone, to walk and climb, to feel sorry for myself, to fill with fantasy people if I chose. The cows still came there, and my grandfather fenced and leveled a small square for a potato patch. Aside from that, it was mine.

But I grew up, my grandmother died, the gravel pit was leveled and the magic isn't there anymore. It is here, in my mind, as long as I can remember, and it's in Lorna's and Angie's and David's and Dan's and maybe in Ronnie's and Daryl's, too.

My children have their own magic places, and so, I'm sure, do Lorna's. That's the wonderful part of childhood. The world is full of magic places, waiting for a child.

June 28, 1965

This was another frightfully hot day. We were all out of sorts, but things have smoothed out considerably. I picked & shelled peas – froze 3 – 1½ pint boxes. The new scented geranium has one bloom – a bright pink with darker markings. I'm disappointed it isn't the bright red I expected from leaf coloration, etc. One calendula was in bloom – I picked the flower to dry for tea. We finally got the rain we needed. Unfortunately it was a terribly hard rain with strong wind. The delphinium plants, which are heavy with flowers, look pretty sad. They will need a little care tomorrow. Thank goodness we had the garden pretty well mulched, so it didn't wash away. As usual, the drive looked like a river. It's still raining – softly now. Oh, yes, Fritz saw a rat this morning – the first we have seen for several weeks. I made iced mint tea this afternoon to the delight of the children. I liked it, too.

September 9, 1965

It's now mid-afternoon of the first full day of school. Dan has missed his family - he really expected them home for lunch. Frequently he complains, "Me too tired", but, of course, he refuses to go to bed. Lisa's eyes really sparkled yesterday when she said that Mrs. Taylor is her teacher. Fritz didn't say much about it, but I got the impression that he felt he had come off well in being placed in Mrs. Hiatt's room. Dan also asks periodically, "When me go to school?" or "When me go to kindergarten?" It seems such a pity it's 3 years away - he wants to go now!

Last night I went to WSCS with Madonna Farlee & Mildred McCool. Kathy Schoepferman spoke about her trip to Germany on the I.U. honors program.

I finally managed to get the mending off my desk. Probably a quick brush-up of the whole house before school is out would be in order.

Dear Carolyn,

Hope this letter finds you well. I have emailed you a couple of times about the book that should be ready in about another two months. I did not send copies of the letter to your children because I thought you would let them know.

Being heavily engaged in condominium operations many years took a lot of my time, but that was given up in 2007. As leisure time took over, I started thinking about all the family information that had been collected over the years and was deciding to throw it away as age of cleaning out things was approaching. But, something "grabbed" me and said do not destroy all that precious information, put it into a book for the family, so I did.

It took part of 2007 and 2009 and all of 2008 but at last there is something to offer the family. A book has been created and some of it's statistics are: 1346 biographies and mini-bios; 90+ pictures - mostly from Simon and Anna Brough but includes a picture of the Frank and Emma McBride Brugh Family that lived in Traverse City. The book is 200 pages (100 sheets on both sides). It covers stories from 1710 to 2009, and has many color pages..

There are many cousins in Indiana and Ohio and while Michel the grandfather is buried in Indiana; the grandmother, Elizabeth, is in Tiffin, Ohio. I plan to offer this book at BELOW COST, and am asking for reimbursement for fees for computer help and also ink and supplies during this period (2007-2009) as well as the actual publishing price. The cost was originally predicted to run to $75.00 a book but think it will bottom out at $62.00 per book and that includes shipping. All costs will not be recovered, but this will suffice and of course there is no charge for my time and research over years.

We expect a delivery date of August 1, 2009 , but are not asking for orders yet, will wait a little while and send out a general memo. I would appreciate you spreading the word among our many cousins and drop me a note on possible numbers or call me. As of this moment, a book run of only 50 copies is planned and there will be no other printing, probably ever. This would account for part of the reason for the cost of the book. Larger quantities would bring the cost down. When the official memo comes out, a deadline will be set for orders and that amount of copies will be printed.

There will be 6 or 8 pages setup at the end of the book for new information so people can add or change and correct things as they desire.

at the close of the war, many of them decided to remain in this country as they could see it was a fair and good one, and among these were Johannes Koch and one Daniel Texter. They married women of Berks county and settled in the South Mountains in Lower Heidelberg township, where they secured land which they improved and cultivated and on which they lived out honest, virtuous lives. Both reared generous families and their descendants reside in Lower Berks County and at Reading, many of them being among the most substantial citizens of their localities. The children of these pioneers married and intermarried and many of them still live in the same community and retain the old plantations.

Johannes Koch was a weaver by trade and this business he taught to all of his five sons. In addition he conducted his small farm, which is now embraced in the property of his great-grandson, Franklin Koch, of Lower Heidelberg township. He was a tall, well-built, raw-boned man, robust and exceedingly strong, and his sons and grandsons inherited his great statue along with his sterling honesty and persevering industry. He was noted for a kindness of heart that also distinguishes his descendants to the present generation. In religious belief he was a Lutheran. His burial took place at the St. Daniel's (Corner) Church. His family consisted of five sons and four daughters. (1) Stophel m. Elizabeth Texter and had no children. (2) Molly, m. a Mr. Auchenbach. He was married (second) to Hannah Hassler, a daughter of Sebastian and a granddaughter of Philip Hassler, of Heidelberg, and to this union were born three sons: Adam and Isaac, twins; and Franklin. Adam lived at Wernersville and Isaac lived at Reading. Franklin Koch was born February 21, 1852, on the homestead in the South Mountains which he now owns and operates. German and English terms and abbreviations in making up the record. With the close of his labors in our congregation, the second volume of the official record of our congregation is also brought to a close. Doctor Dubbs preached more than eight thousand sermons, and officiated at the corner-stone laying or consecration of sixty-five churches. The last service of the latter kind in which he was engaged was the solemn opening, on Christmas Day, 1876, of Salem Reformed Church, Allentown, of which his son was pastor. Aside from his manifold labors as preacher and pastor, he contributed frequent articles to the church papers, and was the author of several German hymns. In 1866 Franklin and Marshall College conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity, in recognition of his abundant, fruitful and faithful services.

A leading trait in the character of Doctor Dubbs was supreme regard for the demands of duty. Nothing could induce him to miss an engagement. In the general affairs of his denominations he took a profound interest; and at a meeting of the Classis of East Pennsylvania he prepared and offered the resolution which finally led to the preparation of the "Order of Worship." In an extant letter the late Doctor Schaff calls him "the father of the German hymn book," because he first suggested its publication. Socially he was unusually genial, and for many years was the friend and adviser of his people in secular, no less than in religious, affairs. Few ministers have been regarded and remembered by their people with such profound affection.

Father Dubbs was twice married, the first time, in 1825, to Susan Getz, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Getz, of Berks County. This union was blessed with three children, one son and two daughters. The son was the late Rev. A. J. G. Dubbs, who assisted his father for a short season in Zion congregation, but later was pastor of charges in Northampton and Lehigh Counties, and later still, the organizer and first pastor of the Salem Reformed Church, of Allentown. The daughters, Louisa and Elmira, respectively married to Messrs. A. L. Schreiber and James O. Shimer, are both still living in Allentown. Mrs. Dubbs entered her eternal rest, November 1, 1835, aged 30 years and 23 days. She lies buried in the Egypt Cemetery, to the right and rear of the present church building. Her tombstone bears the following record:

The officiating clergymen were the Revs. Wartman and C. G. Herman.

The second wife of Doctor Dubbs was Mrs. Eleanor Murphy, daughter of David Lerch and his wife, nee Eleanor Jones, to whom he was married in 1837. By his second wife there were two sons, of whom the younger, Silas, died in childhood. The other was the late Rev. Joseph Henry Dubbs, assistant to his father in Zion congregation for a period of more than a year, and regular pastor for three years. The record of his life and work will be found at the close of this chapter. The living descendants of Joseph S. Dubbs at this time number thirty.

Father Dubbs completed his earthly labors on April 14, 1877. He lies buried in Union Cemetery, Allentown, to the north of the main entrance, where a chaste tombstone, marking his last resting place, bears the following inscription:

DUFF GREEN, PRINTER.

Miles on Henry Putt

The Shoup's had a girl named Sarah; then two boys, Henry and John. The Shoups had neighbors in Holland by the name of Putt. They had a son Henry. Henry often heard stories of the Shoup family growing up and saved his money to go to America. When he was in his early twenties he immigrated to America and found his way to the Juniata Valley and the home of Mr Shoup. He went to work on their farm. Eventually he married Sarah and Mr Shoup gave them a piece of land along Shoup's Run to build their home.

Henry knew a great deal about milling as his father in Holland had owned a Grist Mill. The new settlement was in need of a Mill to grind their grain. Henry found a good spot along the stream to build his Mill where he could turn the water from the stream into the Mill with the least danger of the Mill being washed out at times of flood. The Mill was located about one hundred feet east of the bridge. He built a dam about three hundred feet up stream from the Mill. Then a trench or millrace was dug to carry the water from the dam to the Mill. He then built a head gate, Miles does not mention the female issue of Henry and Sarah, though they appear on census, but states that he had seven boys, whose names were: Henry Putt II, Michael , Abel, Jacob, Jonathon, Abraham and William. William was his grandfather.

Henry, the father, built a great trade in the milling business. He needed to expand his area as there was not enough people in the vicinity to consume the surplus. He conceived the idea of shipping his surplus flour to Baltimore. Every spring Henry and the boys would make a trip to Baltimore with an ark load of flour. The Putts kept on in the milling business, but branched out into wagon making. The first wagon they made was called the tar skein wagon because it used pine tar to grease or lubricate the wooden skein or spindle.

By 1800 the little village on Shoups Run Branch of the Juniata had become quite large. It boasted a Grist Mill. Saw Mill, Cider MIll, Cooper's Shop, Wagon-making Shop, Saddler's Shop and later, about 1850, one of Henry's sons built another Grist Mill about one mile west of the old MIll.

Carolyn..

Ha...The only other people I know of who have any interest in researching the Putts are Nick's two cousins, Mary Jean (Tull) Sand of Chicago and Lois McDaniel of Hamilton, OH. Lois doesn't use a computer though...it's hard sharing info with her. Some folks just don't see any point in chasing dead people I guess. But I for one like to know from whence we came. haha.

Thanks for the additional thoughts about Jacob. Being the "inlaw" I haven't done as much on the Putt/Anstett lines as Mary Jean may have. I sort of inherited it from Lois who is getting up in years. I've been researching my side of the family for about 20 years but decided for my kids' sake, I'd better start adding their dad's side to the mix.

There sure are more Putts out there than I would have imagined...never seemed to me like a very common name. I was surprised!

I didn't received any "report" from you...like one that FTM might have generated, if that's what you sent. Let me know what you think once you have time to go over it. No hurry...

I have what is maybe a silly question.

I'm to the point of entering Collis E. Putt....who married Vadis Heffelmeyer.

Who is the husband and who is the wife! haha. I'm thinking Collis is male but I sure don't know for sure.

Can you clear that up for me?

Subject: Re: Anstett & Putt

Hi Carolyn...

It is my husband that ties into the Putt family. I'll attach a file on what I know of the Putts and the known descendants.

The Anstetts are a bit ancillary for us but I do like having any Putt connections. On the file I've highlighted my husband's line in yellow. I highlighted George and the Anstett connection in blue....and as you can see, it goes no further than what you told me.

Since you are cousins, I'd like to have as much as you can offer. Not asking much, am I?
If you see any glaring blanks in my longer report, feel free to add them and return it to me. I'm happy to hear about corrections too. Any important dates and places are welcome too.

Where do you live now? We're in Cincinnati. Nick's ancestor, Daniel Jacob, moved from Berks Co PA to Indianapolis to work with the railroad. From there, his grandfather, Leon, ended up in Richmond, IN and Gene ended up here in Cincinnati working for GE. They've been here ever since except for a short stay in Philadelphia in the 60's.

Don't go to any trouble....but whatever you can throw together is helpful. Oh...cousin Mary Tull in Chicago wanted to know the name of the book you mentioned. Is it on Anstetts? or Putts? She thought if there were more Putt information in it, she might try to find a copy.

PUTT, GEORGE, p. 733
Surnames: PUTT, BRIGEL, DEPPEN, HASSLER, LENINGER, HECKLER, WEINHOLD, MAYER, ACHENBACH, FLICKINGER, SPEARS, YONSON

George Putt, foreman of the ore roasters at the Robesonia Iron Company's plant, was born near Robesonia, in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., Aug. 7, 1862, son of Joseph and Catherine (Brigel) Putt.
Jacob Putt his grandfather, was a native of Germany, and came to Berks county when he was fifteen years of age. He worked as a teamster, hauling charcoal and iron ore for many years, and all of his sons followed the same business. He lies buried at St. Daniel's (Corner) Church. His sons were: Joseph, George, Thomas, Jacob, Henry, Franklin, Levi and Frederick. His daughters were Sophia married Adam Deppen; Susan married (first) Elijah Hassler and (second) John Leninger; Peggy married a Mr. Heckler; Sarah died unmarried.
Joseph Putt, father of George, resided in the house in which the latter was born, in Heidelberg township, for nearly fifty years. He followed teaming as a business. He married Catherine Brigel, daughter of Adam and Barbara (Weinhold) Brigel. Mr. and Mrs. Putt have long since passed away and are interred at Womelsdorf. They had the following children: Frank, who was killed at the battle of Cold Harbor, while fighting in defense of his country; Charles, who lives at Garrett, Ind.; Joseph, who is assistant foreman at the Robesonia Iron Company; Jacob, a farmer residing near Garrett, Ind.; William, who is in the employ of the Robesonia Iron Company; Sarah, who was accidentally burned to death in childhood; Ellen I., married to Charles P. Mayer, who is stove tender for the Robesonia Iron Company; and George.
George Putt left school at a very early age in order to commence work at the furnace, beginning to be self-supporting in 1878, and has continued with the Robesonia Iron Company. He has proved himself such a reliable, steady and efficient employe that he has had substantial recognition of his usefulness at various times, and in 1887 he was appointed foreman of the ore roasters, having a gang of twenty-six men under his charge. In politics he is a Republican, and although he lives in a strong Democrati district he was elected school director in the spring of 1902, in which office he served for three years. He has filled other positions, having been township committeeman for two years, and on different occasions has been chosen a delegate to county conventions. He is a member of Washington Camp, No. 67, P. O. S. of A., of Womelsdorf, and of Lodge No. 119, Knights of Pythias, of Robesonia.
In 1886 Mr. Putt was married to Fianna Achenbach, born April 6, 1864, a daughter of Levi and Mary (Putt) Achenbach, the former of whom is a stone-mason in Mill Creek township. Mr. and Mrs. Putt have three children. Jennie M.; Maggie M., who married Howard Flickinger, a clerk at Robesonia; and Irwin. Mr. Putt and his family reside in their own home on Main street, Robesonia, which he bought in 1900. With his family he belongs to St. Paul's Reformed Church, in which he is a deacon. He was a liberal contributor to the erection of this handsome church edifice in 1903.
Joseph Putt, foreman of the laborers at the Robesonia Iron Company's plant at Robesonia, was born Oct. 25, 1852, in his father's house in Heidelberg township. He is a son of Joseph Putt. He obtained his education at the Furnace school-house in his native township, but was only ten years old when he began work at the Robesonia Furnace, and he has been working regularly in the same employ ever since, being one o the company's oldest and most reliable employes. He has charge of the labor force of fifty men, a position he has filled since 1904. He is a Republican in politics, and on different occasions has been a delegate to county conventions.
On Aug. 13, 1887, he was married to Leah Spears, a daughter of James and Elizabeth (Yonson) Spears, and they have one son, James H. S., who is a young man of fine educational attainments. He was educated in the township schools, graduated from the Robesonia high school, later attended two spring sessions at the West Chester Normal School and still later graduated from the Inter-State Commercial College, Reading. Mr. Putt resides in his own home on Elm street, Robesonia, which he purchased in the spring of 1902. Fraternally he belongs to Washington Camp, No. 37, P. O. S. of A., of Robesonia, of which he has been a trustee since 1899; and to the Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 119, of which he is past chancellor commander. He is a Reformed member of Zion's Church of Womelsdorf. Mrs. Putt was reared in the Presbyterian faith, her parents belonging to the First Presbyterian Church. She is connected with St. Daniel's (Corner) Church.

Rebecca daughter of George W and Elizabeh Brigel was born Jul 14. Rebecca married HENRY PUTT.
6. Anna PUTT b: 22 JUN 1831

Henry Putt lived in Robesonia and was employed as a laborer at the furnace. He was 45 years old and a wife and 6 small children are left to mourn his loss.

Henry Putt, one of the killed, was standing at the very bottom of the stack, and he is the only one who, it is thought, was crushed to death, the others giving up their lives in the fire and the smoke. The accident is entirely due to the apparent weakness of the columns supporting the stack. Coroner Schaedler was here last night and, when the bodies are all recovered, will make a thorough investigation into the case, and particularly the cause which led to the catastrophe.

The body of Henry Putt was taken out of the ruins in pieces. all of which were placed in a box. When his son George arrived, he examined the bodies and, picking up a shred of clothing, remarked "this was my father's". Putt lived here and leaves a wife and 5 children.

From the Reading Eagle, Saturday, Nov 15, 1884:

Dear Carolyn and Florian: And to Jennie and Larry, too: How nice to hear from you. I'm sorry we can't exchange more cheerful news. Our golden years are a bit tarnished, aren't they. My take on it is that we just polish ourselves up and keep on moving. After all, we weren't born with a guarantee. I hope you are not too uncomfortable with the residual effects of the stroke. What a bother! My symptoms are a little more severe, but I'm managing well. I have a little halt in my step, I feel constantly dazed and sort of dumb, I don't write--just type, and my eyesight has been somewhat effected. Dr. Levy removed a golf-ball sized tumor from atop my cerebellum (why don't they offer spell-check on email!) two weeks ago on April Fools Day. The diagnosis is brain cancer. Sounds serious and I guess it is, but I try not to dwell on it. I have Davis here and he is an incredibly good caregiver. We are eating very well--I'm ravenous because of steroid pills and can't seem to get enough chocolate. Lots of Easter bunnies have been devoured. And they're on sale now! Friends have been so good with offers of assistance (even one for a batch of chocolate cookies) which I must delay accepting because I need to get a better grip on myself before receiving visitors.

This week I return to Northwestern Hospital to learn about and perhaps begin therapy. Of course this event has been so surprising that I don't remember all that was told me. I'll have many questions. Seems to me that they said radiation and not chemotherapy.

I think I'll try to send this note to Jennie and Larry, too. I've only spoken with her once and she deserves an update. If only I can figure out how to do it. (Looks like you'll be receiving this, too, Lucille--been meaning to write to you anyway. Maybe you're still digging in Israel.) Thanks, Carolyn, for your message of encouragement. I really appreciate it and extend my very best wishes for your improved health.

Love, David

Hi, Carolyn: Geneology must be a very satisfying hobby. I know Aunt Lurah is hooked on it. Even my mother had the bug, and Jennie does, too. I've not been bitten. Wonder if it's gender specific. I enjoy seeing the results, though. Jennie found that the Kings and Reinoehls (Dad's family) came to America in the 1740s and 1750s and were Huegonauts. Colonists, not immigrants!

Your upcoming trip to Seattle sounds great. I've never been up there but hear it's beautiful. Are you able to research it on the internet? I do a lot of "travel" there. Next Friday, Davis and I are flying to Austin TX for a wedding--my first outing since surgery, except for hospital. Didn't your Dan live there for awhile? We were there in November and were surprised that it's so unlike what we expected a Texas city to be like. The bats had flown south for the winter, but they'll be back for us this time. The groom, aged 27, is the son of our best friends both of whom are deceased, so Davis and I have become surrogate parents to him and his brother. He has over the years brought a number of girlfriends here for dinner for us to meet. Next day comes the phone call, "What did you think"? He found a winner, we think, with Amy and we are looking forward to the events surrounding the ceremony.

I estimate that I'm at about 80% recovered now. Still have the need to gain strength and energy. But I'm working on it.

Today is my e-mail day. Yours arrived just in time!

Love, David

Dear Carolyn and Florian: How nice to receive your message the the report on your trip to the Olympic Peninsula. I've never been there but have friends who are absolutely devoted to it--go there every summer. It must be some beautiful place. I've seen pictures, but as you know, there's nothing like seeing it for yourself for full appreciation.

Your diet of salmon and rice pilaf sounds exactly right to me, Carolyn. Where could the fish be fresher? I think I'd follow much the same diet plan and enjoy every bite of it. Hope you left some room for desserts, though. Nothing like something chocolatey to top off a splendid dinner!

Last week my doctor adjusted my medications and added one, which has left me feeling a lot better--more energetic and alert. We entertained Jane Cooney for dinner last night. She' s the woman who owns and operates Books for Business where I was working before cancer hit. A lovely, smart, sophisticated, funny lady. Davis and she really hit it off. She asked if I would like to come into the office for a few hours each day to releive Peter, her only other employee, and answer phones while she goes home to Toronto for three weeks. I've decided to do it. I'm very fond of her and Peter and the business. She is considering opening a retail space at street level which will add to the excitement of the place (and hopefully profits, too).

Sunday Davis and I drove to Lake Forest where his cousin lives. Erin and Grover fed us lunch, then we went for a sail on Lake Michigan. One thing I learned is "hold it if you can". A boat under sail is not the easiest place to use the bathroom! We returned to their house which they have sold to bid it adieu with a champagne toast, smashing the glasses in the fireplace. That's a tradition somewhere, I guess, but I had never heard of it before. Have you?

One thing I've been meaning to share with you is a strange reaction I had after having gone through surgery. When I became halfway alert, my first reaction was "I want my Mom". Then realizing the impossibility of that I supressed it. I wonder if you had a similar reaction after your diagnosis. It was a childish emotion, but there it was, and it has haunted me since. I think of her often. Her birthday was last Saturday.

Golden Years? I think they're what we make them and it sounds as if you are doing well. And I'm certainly on the trail. I guess we ignore the tarnish and appreciate the underlying purity of the gloss.

My love to you both.
Davis

In Nov. of 1913, Levi & Harriett gave pieces of land to each of their 4 surviving children (Joanna d. 1900)

To Frank, the small farm on which he lived.
To Sadie, another, seperate farm
To George, ½ the home farm - the north part, app. 29 A.
To Susie, ½ the home farm - the south part, app. 29 A.

Levi d. 1914

Susie d. 1916?

Was her acreage divided between her 3 surviving siblings? Or what? She isn't in the estate - or is she?

In May of 1916
George sold his half (the north part) of the acreage to Oscar and Sadie for $1740.

In 1940, Frank & George sold the south (originally Susie's) half to J. Brand for $1450.

If Frank owned 2/3 of this, his take would have been only $966.66-

Lisa came home half-sick at noon - fought with Dan all afternoon.

Saturday - Fritz + Florian went to Scoutarama - Hamilton Cubs put on Minstrel Show. Lisa ~~is~~ sicker today. Dan has bad cold. They fuss all the time.

M/ Sunday - Fritz & I didn't go to S.S. I think he is just worn out from his big day. My folks were here in the afternoon. Fritz and I gathered nettles for supper. They are quite edible - much like spinach, I think, but they were not very popular. Florian found the very thought of nettles unappetizing!
